"The wedding will not take place a announced at the Church of the Epipa any on Mooday afternoon, but we shall be wedded privately to-morrow at the bride's home. There will be no bridesmaids, no maids of honor, no guests. That's about all there is to say. We haven't completed the arrangements

Mr. Price said his relatives had kept the newspapers from him, and he seemed pleased to learn that the other men in Wall street regarded him so well and spoke so kindly of him.

"I am glad to hear that," he said smiling saily. "And I am glad to say that my flancee is more anxious to be my wife than ever hefer."

"I amy wife than ever hefer." my wife than ever before."

THE PLUCKY BRIDE.

The ushers at the wedding planned for the church were to have been Major Beilinger, of the United States Army Franklin A. Plummer, De Witt Parshall and Cyrus Hall McCormick. Their presence in this capacity will be dispensed with at the house wedding. Miss Dyer announced this afternoon that the maid of honor would be her niece, Miss Elizabeth Taylor, and the best mon Walter W. Price, brother of the bride-

Miss Dyer's wedding gown is of white eatin, made with a gamp and sleeves of tulie, trimmed with point applique

It was originally intended that the couple would make a driving trip their honeymoon tour, and this intention is Ekely to be followed.

"I have known Mr. Price all my life." onid Miss Dyer, "and when this mis-fortune befell him I felt that this was the time, above all others, when I must decide whether I would take the vox to stand by him through prosperity and odversity. No circumstances could have made it otherwise, so far as I am con-
